I Memorabili. Vite segrete di uomini illustri Stefano e Valentina Gelain 2014-01-29 Ogni epoca ha avuto grandi uomini e grandi donne, la cui fama è stata raccolta ed eternata dalla Storia. I Memorabili cattura, con sagacia e limpida ironia, fugaci attimi della vita di eroi quali Omero, Cleopatra, Carlo Magno, Dante, San Francesco, Galileo, Manzoni e altri. Una parodia fondata sui detti e i fatti di questi grandi uomini tramandati fino a noi, raccontati con frizzante e garbata irriverenza. Ventuno racconti composti con una tecnica leggera e precisa che collega i grandi personaggi e le loro peculiarità caratteriali alle vicissitudini quotidiane. Un ritratto comico e bonariamente demitizzante che ha nel contempo la dote di suscitare l'allegria e aprire uno spiraglio alla curiosità di rinnovare l'interesse verso personalità di epoche passate e avvenimenti storici, artistici, letterari, religiosi della nostra tradizione.

Economy of the Unlost Anne Carson 2009-04-11 The ancient Greek lyric poet Simonides of Keos was the first poet in the Western tradition to take money for poetic composition. From this starting point, Anne Carson launches an exploration, poetic in its own right, of the idea of poetic economy. She offers a reading of certain of Simonides' texts and aligns these with writings of the modern Romanian poet Paul Celan, a Jew and survivor of the Holocaust, whose "economies" of language are notorious. Asking such questions as, What is lost when words are wasted? and Who profits when words are saved? Carson reveals the two poets' striking commonalities. In Carson's view Simonides and Celan share a similar mentality or disposition toward the world, language and the work of the poet. Economy of the Unlost begins by showing how each of the two poets stands in a state of alienation between two worlds. In Simonides' case, the gift economy of fifth-century b.c. Greece was giving way to one based on money and commodities, while Celan's life spanned pre- and post-Holocaust worlds, and he himself, writing in German, became estranged from his native language. Carson goes on to consider various aspects of the two poets' techniques for coming to grips with the invisible through the visible world. A focus on the genre of the epitaph grants insights into the kinds of exchange the poets envision between the living and the dead. Assessing the impact on Simonidean composition of the material fact of inscription on stone, Carson suggests that a need for brevity influenced the exactitude and clarity of Simonides' style, and proposes a comparison with Celan's interest in the "negative design" of printmaking: both poets, though in different ways, employ a kind of negative image making, cutting away all that is superfluous. This book's juxtaposition of the two poets illuminates their differences--Simonides' fundamental faith in the power of the word, Celan's ultimate despair--as well as their similarities; it provides fertile ground for the virtuosaic interplay of Carson's scholarship and her poetic sensibility.
